

Inside-the-Daf

We know that a positive commandment "pushes aside" a negative one (see pg.15). But not all negative commandments are created equal. Some carry far worse punishments than others.

For example, some negative commandments are punishable by כָּרֵת, or, early death at the hands of Heaven. That's a pretty heavy punishment, so how do we know that positive commandments push aside even severe negative commandments punishable by כָּרֵת?

The אָמָרָא brings examples of positive commandments that are performed on the Sabbath even though their performance involves work that is not allowed on the holy day. In fact, if one intentionally performs such work, the punishment is כָּרֵת.

For example, מִילָה (circumcision) is performed on the Sabbath and the קָרְבַּן קַרְבַּן תָּמִיד (Passover offering) and כָּקַר (daily offering) are sacrificed on that day even though all of these commandments involve "creating a wound," a task punishable by כָּרַת

The גְּמָרָא at first suggests that these three commandments can prove that a positive commandment can override a negative one punishable by כָּרַת. The גְמָרָא points out that there are facts about each of these אַצְוֹת (commandments) that make them unique. See the chart for more information.

- מִילָה CIRCUMCISION

- 13 agreements were made with אַבְרָהֶם (Abraham) over this commandment
- This commandment was given even before the Giving of the Torah

הַגְמִיד DAILY OFFERING

- Gives "food" to the Altar
- This commandment was given even before the Giving of the Torah

미호철– PASSOVER OFFERING

• Gives "food" to the Altar

WORD OF

"LET IT SAY"

- This commandment was given even before the Giving of the Torah
- One receives כְּרֵת for not doing this commandment

HE DAY:

WWW.DAFYOMI4KIDS.COM

DAF YOMI 4 KIDS

The viir 's Hair

The גְמָרָא gives another example of "עֲשֵׂה דּוֹחֶה לֹא תַעֲשֶׂה", a positive commandment pushing aside a negative one.

Consider the מְצוֹרָע. A מְצוֹרָע, a is someone who has גָרַעַת, a condition that causes white or light-colored spots to appear on the body. When the מְצוֹרָע is healed of this condition, he goes through a purification ritual. During this ritual, the Torah tells us he "must shave off all his hair, his head, his beard, his eyebrows" (see ויקרא יד,ט, Lev. 14,9).

But the Torah commands, "you shall not round off the corners of your head and you

RAW IT!

Read "The מְצוֹרֶע's Hair" and draw the מְצוֹרֶע before and after the purification ritual shall not destroy the corners of your beard" (ויקרא יט,כז, Lev. 19,27).

The אָמָרָא suggests that this may be the source for the rule that a positive commandment pushes aside a negative one. The מְצוֹרָע given a positive commandment to shave his hair which pushes aside the negative commandment to not "round the corners of your head."

_A_מְדוֹת_Moment

"Is there ever a time we shouldn't listen to our parents?" asked Zamir.

"Don't we always have to listen to our parents?" asked Joey.

"Not if they tell you to do something against the Torah," said Zamir. "The Torah tells us to fear our parents but not at the expense of keeping the Sabbath. From here we learn that if a parent tells one to transgress a commandment, we do not listen to them. After all, our parents are also commanded to listen to Hashem."

Did You Know...

The Torah forbids wearing שַׁעַטְנֵי wool and linen that has been combed out until smooth then spun into thread and woven together into fabric.

יְבָמוֹת דַּף ה' – Review Questions

 Give an example of a commandment that pushes aside a כָּרַת prohibition.

2. How does a מְצוֹרָע push aside a negative commandment?

3. When does the Torah forbid one to wear wool and linen together?

